

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A crystal resonator area and side electrode shielding/formation blocks thereabout are formed on a crystal substrate through etching with both areas kept separate from each other with a gap. Vapor deposition is diagonally applied through this gap toward the side of the crystal substrate to thereby form an electrode film divided into two portions in the thickness direction of the substrate on the side.